

Courses Description

College: Queen Rania'S Faculty Of Childhood

Department: Childhood Education

Couse ID: 2011011701 Description: Digital Media and Supportive Technology in Childhood

Full Course Description: This course aims at providing students with knowledge, concepts of the digital media such as computers of all kinds (PC, laptop, and tablet), smart boards, Internet, satellite, digital games...etc(and supportive technology and its effectiveness e and use of supportive technology with children with disabilities and talents, and the concept of supporting technology and its types. Further, learners should be able to designate needed supportive technology based on the individual, and the ability to identify the characteristics of people with disabilities disability tailored to his/her needs who benefit from the use of support technology and focus on each category of special education and techniques. This course should introduce learners to different types of supportive technologies designated for children with disabilities, prepare individual plans and computerize. It also concentrates on the role of organizing learning environment in order to facilitate the use of supportive technology and the use of technology in facilitating social interactions and evaluate the role of technology by the category of disability. In addition, the course aims at identifying the role of digital media and technology in teaching children with disabilities and discuss issues related to using technology with children.

Couse ID: 2311011701 Description: Technology and Digital Media in Early Childhood

Full Course Description: The aim of this course is to introduce the role of technology and digital media in early childhood education. It also highlights strategies for planning the integration of technology and digital media into children is learning environment. The course focuses on technical design principles and applications in early childhood, evaluation of educational courseware, techniques and digital media for children. Additionally, the course presents modern models and innovations of technology and digital media such as, computers of all kinds (PC, laptop, and tablet), smart boards, Internet, satellite, digital games...etc.

Couse ID: 2311011702 Description: Early Childhood Teacher Education

Full Course Description: This article focuses on the knowledge, skills and attitudes that early childhood teachers should have in different situations, the standards that should be met by early childhood teachers, and the most important tasks assigned to them in order to develop children's development and learning. It also highlights the ethics of the profession, Moreover, the course tackles the preparation of pre-service and pre-service early childhood teachers. It also presents experiences, experiences and international models in the preparation of early childhood teachers. The course also aims at developing strategies for training and supervising early childhood teachers and the contemporary perspectives related to this aspect.

Couse ID: 2311011703 Description: Early Childhood Curriculum Development

Full Course Description: This course tackles the concept of the early childhood curriculum and its different perceptions, in terms of its sources, elements, characteristics and types. The course also focuses on the mechanisms of design, implementation and evaluation of early childhood curricula. The course also sheds some lights on the problems of curriculum development, determining what makes the curriculum developmentally appropriate for young children. Additionally, this course review and analyze local, regional and international early childhood curricula.

Couse ID: 2311011714 Description: Parental Awareness and Participation

Full Course Description: The course tackles the guidance of parents of children during their developmental stages, psychological needs and guidance services provided to them. It also focuses on the definition of the standards of abnormal behavior and strategies to modify it. Moreover, the course tackles the problems faced by children and practical applications on how to deal with them. It also deals with the psychology of family relations, parental involvement in promoting children's development and learning at home and childcare institutions as well as the most important family problems. Additionally, the course identifies the diagnostic and measurement tools in the field of family counseling for children.

Courses Description

College: Queen Rania'S Faculty Of Childhood

Department: Childhood Education

Couse ID: 2311011725 Description: Early Childhood Intervention

Full Course Description: This course explores the historical and legal development of the field of early childhood special education. Further, the course aims at introducing the principles of early intervention, its concepts, rational, implications, and challenges. Additionally, the course will discuss development in early childhood, risk factors, and targeted at-risk students, in addition to service delivery models. Moreover, the relationship between protection, early screening, and early intervention is highlighted; the global programs in early intervention quality indicators will be explored, as well. Finally, effective communication strategies with families of targeted children in early childhood special education will be discussed throughout this course.

Couse ID: 2311011732 Description: Early Childhood Education Theories Development and their Application

Full Course Description: This course tackles the development of interest in early childhood, and the foundations and philosophical trends that dealt with early childhood through the ages. The course also reviews the contributions of the most prominent Western and Arab educational pioneers in early childhood and their theories. It also focuses on critical analysis of these contributions and theories and their applications in early childhood education. Additionally, it develops students' ability to plan best practices in light of these varied trends and theories.

Couse ID: 2311011734 Description: Childhood Psychology / Advanced

Full Course Description: This course tackles all developmental aspects of the child. It also focuses on analyzing developmental problems and suggesting appropriate solutions through the case study method. Additionally, it develops students' ability to build developmentally appropriate programs and activities to foster the development of children and develop their learning.

Couse ID: 2311011736 Description: Assessment of Development and Learning in Early Childhood

Full Course Description: This course tackles the principles, characteristics and standards of assessment in early childhood years. It also reviews the child's developmental criteria, and strategies for assessing child development and learning such as observation and performance-based assessment. In addition, this course provides students with the skills to develop appropriate measurement tools and instruments to measure the child's development and learning from various developmental aspects. It also provide students with the skills to apply these instruments, analyze and interpret their results.

Couse ID: 2311011737 Description: The psychology of play in Early Childhood

Full Course Description: This course discusses the importance of play and its role in child's development and learning through reviewing the most important theories that dealt with play, developmental stages of play and its type. The course also tackles the management of children's play and the use of play in counseling and psychotherapy for children. In addition, the course presents the criteria for the security and safety of children's play, and the impact of electronic games on the child's development and learning. The course also provides students with the ability to evaluate educational play

Couse ID: 2311011749 Description: Development and Learning Environment in Early Childhood

Full Course Description: This course discusses the importance of the physical and social environment and its impact on child's development and learning in early childhood. It focuses also on the characteristics and specifications that must be available in the children's development and learning environment in various educational institutions in which the child grows such as home, nursery, kindergarten and school. The course also highlights the international standards of the children's development and learning environment. In addition, the course aims to provide students with the skills to prepare and evaluate the child's development and learning environments. The course also presents a number of research studies that examined the nature of the environment surrounding children and its impact on various aspects of their development and learning.

Courses Description

College: Queen Rania'S Faculty Of Childhood

Department: Childhood Education

Couse ID: 2311011751 Description: Administrating Early Childhood Institutions

Full Course Description: This course aims at identifying the institutions of childhood in terms of its development and types. It introduces students to local institutions in Jordan and a number of Arab and international institutions, Moreover, the course identifies the services, achievements and contributions of each institution in the field of early childhood. The course focuses on administrating childhood institutions and how this differs from other stages. The course also aims at providing students with some professional values and professional experience and how to use modern technology in administrative roles.

Couse ID: 2311011763 Description: International Programs in Early Childhood: Analysis and Evaluation

Full Course Description: The aim of this course is to introduce students to the most important international programs in early childhood, in terms of their origins, objectives, its nature and how they differ from other programs as well as their contribution in providing services to children at different developmental and cultural levels. Additionally, the course aims at providing students with the necessary skills to prepare, plan and evaluate similar programs to develop children's learning and development in all fields.

Couse ID: 2311011775 Description: Research Methods and Applications

Full Course Description: This course tackles the concept of scientific research, its fundamentals, its classification, and its methods: quantity, quality and mixed. The course also develops students' ability to design the research proposal and the skills of preparing and applying research in terms of identifying research problem, setting objectives, questions and/or hypotheses, choosing the appropriate methodology, preparing research instruments, conducting the research and analyzing and discussing the results. Ethical considerations and plagiarism are also covered.

Couse ID: 2311011799 Description: Thesis

Full Course Description: When registering for the course of a thesis, students must search for an address in a field of early childhood knowledge fields. Students must demonstrate knowledge and research skills in designing, implementing, writing a solid scientific message and implementing it under the supervision of one or more faculty members. After completion of the study and the approval of the supervisor, the student must submit the study and its results in written and public form within the arbitration committee.

Couse ID: 2311013799 Description: Thesis

Full Course Description:

Couse ID: 2311016799 Description: Thesis

Full Course Description:

Couse ID: 2311019799 Description: Thesis

Full Course Description: